

A Fun Trip Through a Computer-Generated Town

Brian Ostrowski has written a fun children's book that will appeal to children and adults alike. Blip the Bit: And His Adventures in Retroville features four friends—named Blip, Bloop, Bleep, and Zip—who live in the computer-generated town of Retroville. The story follows the four friends as they skip through the town, encountering characters from classic video games along the way.

The colorful, quirky illustrations have been created by first-time book illustrator Ashley Armbruster, and perfectly lend themselves to the story Brian has crafted. Young children will love the colorful illustrations, older children will enjoy the effortlessly flowing rhymes, and adults will have fun trying to spot the video game characters from their own childhood.

Blip the Bit: And His Adventures in Retroville is a must-have for anyone looking for an enjoyable, yet safe, read for their children.

BLIP THE BIT: AND HIS ADVENTURES IN RETROVILLE

by Brian Ostrowski

- Published by: CreateSpace
- Category: Children's Nonfiction
- Number of Pages: 36 pages
- Ages: 3–7
- Price: $10 softcover
- ISBN-10: 1491081546
- ISBN-13: 978-1491081549
- Publication Date: August 6, 2013
- Availability: Amazon.com